

STOLE FEED HER BABY.

His Followers Call a Meeting to Ask Him Questions.

Stained-Glass Windows Now Reflect the Light in Tammany Hall.

A hot time is promised at the meeting of the John J. O'Brien Association, in the Eighth Assembly District, tonight. It will be a "stained-glass" affair, as Mr. O'Brien has been elected to the position of president of the association on demand of ten members of the association who have rebelled against his rule.

On the surface it is made to appear that the kickers are dissatisfied because O'Brien has not given them the patronage he is said to have promised these Irishmen workers for their aid in electing him last fall. But it was said this morning that it is really Barney himself the malcontented are. They accuse Barney, who never forgets, of forgetting to give them the patronage they have given him. They say that he got them out of having got all he wanted for himself.

Soon after Senator Roosevelt's election, it is alleged, Barney secured a concert license from Mayor Grant for George Oestreicher's place in the Bowers, a license which was previously been refused to Max Gomboy, Oestreicher's friend, Oestreicher being supposed to be Gomboy's dummy.

Furthermore, it is alleged that Barney, who has a saloon of his own at 27 Bowers, has been exerting all his influence to protect his fellow saloon-keepers in the Bowers to whom he sells liquor.

Meantime, Oestreicher's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

Barney's Republican henchmen have been waiting in vain for a share of the spoils. Some of them are impressed with the idea that it was their votes that elected Mr. Roosevelt Senator.

STOLE FEED HER BABY.

Pathetic Tale of a Woman Now in a Tombs Cell.

Deserted and Left Peniless by Her Husband in a Strange Land.

Mrs. Frida Stein and her baby Ella have been in America only a month, but their experiences here have been very sad.

Robert Stein, the husband and father, deserted them within a week after their arrival from Germany, leaving them without a penny. They had been prosperous in Germany, where Robert was a carpenter in the suburbs of Berlin. They had 1,500 marks in the bank when Robert lost his job, and they drew their money and came to America to begin again.

"We went to an immigrant lodging-house near the city," said Frida Stein this morning. "Robert went out every day to look for work for eight days. Then one morning he kissed me and kissed the baby, and they were tears in his eyes."

"He said he cried because he could not find work, but that he would try again. He then went away and did not return. I took away all of our money except a few dollars. I waited for him a week."

"Two weeks ago I found a place to stay with Mrs. Biscoff, of 410 Broomfield street. I did work for her, and baby and I were given food and shelter. Mrs. Biscoff had no more work for me last Friday, and I went from place to place, seeking work. I looked some money, and then something from the dirty clothes basket, so as to get something for the baby."

"That was the story of this young mother of twenty-three years, told in German and English, by a kind-hearted matron at the Tombs Prison. Frida Stein, who had been in the Tombs for three days, was told by the matron that she had been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days."

"There are ten other women in the Tombs, who have been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days."

"There are ten other women in the Tombs, who have been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days."

"There are ten other women in the Tombs, who have been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days."

"There are ten other women in the Tombs, who have been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days."

"There are ten other women in the Tombs, who have been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days."

"There are ten other women in the Tombs, who have been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days."

"There are ten other women in the Tombs, who have been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days."

"There are ten other women in the Tombs, who have been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days."

"There are ten other women in the Tombs, who have been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days."

"There are ten other women in the Tombs, who have been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days, and that she had been in the Tombs for three days."

MRS. ADAMS' TRIAL GOES OVER.

Her Case Postponed in the General Sessions Court.

Delay Also Had in the Cases of Accused Dive-Keepers.

The trial of Mrs. Hattie Adams, on the charge of keeping a disorderly house at 11 East Twenty-seventh street, which was to have been held in Part I of General Sessions this morning has been postponed.

Neither Rev. Dr. Farkhurst, nor the agents of his society, on whose testimony the indictment was founded, were present in court. Assistant District Attorney Lyman said that the case of Mrs. Adams was postponed because there were other cases on the calendar that took precedence, some of which had been hanging fire for nearly a year.

The cases of John Kelly, Thomas McCormack, John J. McLean and James Lynch, charged with keeping dives, which were set down for to-day, were also postponed. District Attorney Nicoll said that they might be reached the latter part of the term.

Mrs. McCormack was in court, and by his presence contradicted a report that he was in hiding. His place at 520 Sixth avenue has been closed for three months.

The District Attorney also announced that the case of Mr. Ryan could be postponed until after the trial of John Kelly, who was charged with keeping a disorderly house at 11 East Twenty-seventh street, which was to have been held in Part I of General Sessions this morning has been postponed.

The cases of John Kelly, Thomas McCormack, John J. McLean and James Lynch, charged with keeping dives, which were set down for to-day, were also postponed. District Attorney Nicoll said that they might be reached the latter part of the term.

Mrs. McCormack was in court, and by his presence contradicted a report that he was in hiding. His place at 520 Sixth avenue has been closed for three months.

The District Attorney also announced that the case of Mr. Ryan could be postponed until after the trial of John Kelly, who was charged with keeping a disorderly house at 11 East Twenty-seventh street, which was to have been held in Part I of General Sessions this morning has been postponed.

The cases of John Kelly, Thomas McCormack, John J. McLean and James Lynch, charged with keeping dives, which were set down for to-day, were also postponed. District Attorney Nicoll said that they might be reached the latter part of the term.

Mrs. McCormack was in court, and by his presence contradicted a report that he was in hiding. His place at 520 Sixth avenue has been closed for three months.

The District Attorney also announced that the case of Mr. Ryan could be postponed until after the trial of John Kelly, who was charged with keeping a disorderly house at 11 East Twenty-seventh street, which was to have been held in Part I of General Sessions this morning has been postponed.

The cases of John Kelly, Thomas McCormack, John J. McLean and James Lynch, charged with keeping dives, which were set down for to-day, were also postponed. District Attorney Nicoll said that they might be reached the latter part of the term.

Mrs. McCormack was in court, and by his presence contradicted a report that he was in hiding. His place at 520 Sixth avenue has been closed for three months.

The District Attorney also announced that the case of Mr. Ryan could be postponed until after the trial of John Kelly, who was charged with keeping a disorderly house at 11 East Twenty-seventh street, which was to have been held in Part I of General Sessions this morning has been postponed.

The cases of John Kelly, Thomas McCormack, John J. McLean and James Lynch, charged with keeping dives, which were set down for to-day, were also postponed. District Attorney Nicoll said that they might be reached the latter part of the term.

Mrs. McCormack was in court, and by his presence contradicted a report that he was in hiding. His place at 520 Sixth avenue has been closed for three months.

RAILROAD STRIKE IMPENDS.

Lehigh and Jersey Central Engineers in Angry Mood.

The Coal Combine Blamed for Causing Discharges.

The Hudson Division of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has called a special meeting of its members for Wednesday next, in Jersey City, to discuss the grievances of the men on the Lehigh Valley Branch of the Reading Railroad.

Some of the engineers have been discharged without apparent cause, since the great "deal" was consummated between the Reading and other companies. It is rumored that more will have to go, but the company's officers deny this.

The engineers of the central Railroad of New Jersey have also called a special meeting of its members for Wednesday next, in Jersey City, to discuss the grievances of the men on the Lehigh Valley Branch of the Reading Railroad.

Some of the engineers have been discharged without apparent cause, since the great "deal" was consummated between the Reading and other companies. It is rumored that more will have to go, but the company's officers deny this.

The engineers of the central Railroad of New Jersey have also called a special meeting of its members for Wednesday next, in Jersey City, to discuss the grievances of the men on the Lehigh Valley Branch of the Reading Railroad.

Some of the engineers have been discharged without apparent cause, since the great "deal" was consummated between the Reading and other companies. It is rumored that more will have to go, but the company's officers deny this.

The engineers of the central Railroad of New Jersey have also called a special meeting of its members for Wednesday next, in Jersey City, to discuss the grievances of the men on the Lehigh Valley Branch of the Reading Railroad.

Some of the engineers have been discharged without apparent cause, since the great "deal" was consummated between the Reading and other companies. It is rumored that more will have to go, but the company's officers deny this.

The engineers of the central Railroad of New Jersey have also called a special meeting of its members for Wednesday next, in Jersey City, to discuss the grievances of the men on the Lehigh Valley Branch of the Reading Railroad.

Some of the engineers have been discharged without apparent cause, since the great "deal" was consummated between the Reading and other companies. It is rumored that more will have to go, but the company's officers deny this.

The engineers of the central Railroad of New Jersey have also called a special meeting of its members for Wednesday next, in Jersey City, to discuss the grievances of the men on the Lehigh Valley Branch of the Reading Railroad.

Some of the engineers have been discharged without apparent cause, since the great "deal" was consummated between the Reading and other companies. It is rumored that more will have to go, but the company's officers deny this.

The engineers of the central Railroad of New Jersey have also called a special meeting of its members for Wednesday next, in Jersey City, to discuss the grievances of the men on the Lehigh Valley Branch of the Reading Railroad.

Some of the engineers have been discharged without apparent cause, since the great "deal" was consummated between the Reading and other companies. It is rumored that more will have to go, but the company's officers deny this.

The engineers of the central Railroad of New Jersey have also called a special meeting of its members for Wednesday next, in Jersey City, to discuss the grievances of the men on the Lehigh Valley Branch of the Reading Railroad.

Some of the engineers have been discharged without apparent cause, since the great "deal" was consummated between the Reading and other companies. It is rumored that more will have to go, but the company's officers deny this.

BILLY MCGLODY OUT OF JAIL.

Called from Prison to Appear as a Witness for His Wife.

The Dive-Keeper Becoming Profitable in Blacksmithing.

Billy McGlody, the first dive-keeper convicted as a result of the Kew-Forest case, who was sentenced to a year's imprisonment on Blackwell's Island and to pay a fine of $300, enjoyed a brief interval of liberty to-day.

He was temporarily released on a writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Bonaparte, requiring the Penitentiary authorities to produce him at the Equity Term of the Court of Common Pleas to-day, where he is to appear as a witness in an action brought by his wife against Carrie Schwartz to compel her to execute a mortgage on a residence in the McGlody residence in Ninety-third street.

The ex-diver would be unrecognizable to many acquaintances as he appeared in court to-day. The long, canny-colored locks were shorn close to the scalp, and the lip that formerly grew such an abundant, silky crop of hair was closely shaved. There were lines of care upon his thin face, but his eyes seemed to be as bright and sparkling as of yore.

He was dressed with his old-time air in a stylish spring suit of dark velvet-cord material and a blue Melton overcoat that fitted him perfectly. His feet were incased in fine calfskin, which seemed to claim the greatest part of his attention as he sat in court. The suit was new and was worn over the old suit on the occasion of his wife's release.

McGlody, in charge of Hall-keeper Kennedy, came to the city on the 10 o'clock boat and was met at the pier by Mrs. McGlody. He was handcuffed to the keeper, the steel bracelet and chain being duly conveyed in the folds of his overcoat. On arriving at the court-room the handcuffs were removed, but he was kept close to the keeper.

Kenney Kennedy says McGlody is a model prisoner and has got to be a skilled drifter, at which work he is employed in the blacksmithing department. He has yet about seven months to serve.

The case was called up before Judge Litch at 11 o'clock this morning and put over until 12 P. M.

McGlody's question in is for $1,000, and was given to secure the notes of the mortgage. When the notes were put up, McGlody refused to satisfy the mortgage. It is claimed, saying that McGlody was in the habit of paying the mortgage to the face of the mortgage.

McGlody refused to talk to any one except his wife, who sat beside him, and her counsel.

McGlody's question in is for $1,000, and was given to secure the notes of the mortgage. When the notes were put up, McGlody refused to satisfy the mortgage. It is claimed, saying that McGlody was in the habit of paying the mortgage to the face of the mortgage.

McGlody refused to talk to any one except his wife, who sat beside him, and her counsel.

McGlody's question in is for $1,000, and was given to secure the notes of the mortgage. When the notes were put up, McGlody refused to satisfy the mortgage. It is claimed, saying that McGlody was in the habit of paying the mortgage to the face of the mortgage.

McGlody refused to talk to any one except his wife, who sat beside him, and her counsel.

McGlody's question in is for $1,000, and was given to secure the notes of the mortgage. When the notes were put up, McGlody refused to satisfy the mortgage. It is claimed, saying that McGlody was in the habit of paying the mortgage to the face of the mortgage.

McGlody refused to talk to any one except his wife, who sat beside him, and her counsel.

McGlody's question in is for $1,000, and was given to secure the notes of the mortgage. When the notes were put up, McGlody refused to satisfy the mortgage. It is claimed, saying that McGlody was in the habit of paying the mortgage to the face of the mortgage.

THIRTY-FIVE DIVORCE SUITS.

The Calendar Faced by Justice Truax To-Day.

Tales of Marriages That Were Failed Told in Five Minutes.

Divorce cases were the order of the day with Justice Truax, sitting in Special Term of the Supreme Court to-day, and the calendar was of no less than twenty-five couples were brought to him for adjudication.

The court chamber was thronged with women and children, complainants and their witnesses, for most of the complainants were those of injured wives. All but one of these cases were of the variety that used to be settled before referees, and the papers carefully guarded by the County Clerk. That is to say, cases in which there is no opposition to the divorce.

But since the World exposed the Black-bogus divorce and showed how such secret trials opened the way to abuse and fraud, all such cases have been tried in open court.

The first case to-day was that of Mary L. Davies, who asked for a divorce from Owen Davies, with whom she had not lived for many years. They were married Sept. 19, 1877, and Owen went away soon after. He was a policeman in Jersey City at one time, and lives there now. Mrs. Davies, who is a large woman of middle age, told the court these facts, and Marcelle Davies, her daughter, corroborated her. Other witnesses told how they caught Owen Davies in a Third street house, surrounded by scantily-dressed women, and served the complaint in this action on him there.

These trials are usually very brief. Generally no lawyer appears for the defendant. Nobody said a word in behalf of the Jersey City policeman, and the trial occupied but four minutes. Decision was reserved and the next case was called.

Barbara Kauffman, another heavy woman of middle age, wanted her marriage with Charles Joseph Edward Kauffman annulled on the ground that he had a living wife when he married her to the late J. J. 1888.

Barbara Kauffman appeared for Barbara and was met at the pier by Mrs. McGlody. He was handcuffed to the keeper, the steel bracelet and chain being duly conveyed in the folds of his overcoat. On arriving at the court-room the handcuffs were removed, but he was kept close to the keeper.

Kenney Kennedy says McGlody is a model prisoner and has got to be a skilled drifter, at which work he is employed in the blacksmithing department. He has yet about seven months to serve.

The case was called up before Judge Litch at 11 o'clock this morning and put over until 12 P. M.

McGlody's question in is for $1,000, and was given to secure the notes of the mortgage. When the notes were put up, McGlody refused to satisfy the mortgage. It is claimed, saying that McGlody was in the habit of paying the mortgage to the face of the mortgage.

McGlody refused to talk to any one except his wife, who sat beside him, and her counsel.

McGlody's question in is for $1,000, and was given to secure the notes of the mortgage. When the notes were put up, McGlody refused to satisfy the mortgage. It is claimed, saying that McGlody was in the habit of paying the mortgage to the face of the mortgage.

McGlody refused to talk to any one except his wife, who sat beside him, and her counsel.

McGlody's question in is for $1,000, and was given to secure the notes of the mortgage. When the notes were put up, McGlody refused to satisfy the mortgage. It is claimed, saying that McGlody was in the habit of paying the mortgage to the face of the mortgage.

McGlody refused to talk to any one except his wife, who sat beside him, and her counsel.

McGlody's question in is for $1,000, and was given to secure the notes of the mortgage. When the notes were put up, McGlody refused to satisfy the mortgage. It is claimed, saying that McGlody was in the habit of paying the mortgage to the face of the mortgage.

23D ST., EAST.

Jordan, Moriarty & Co.

155, 157 and 159 EAST 23D ST., WEST OF 3D AVE., NEW YORK.

SPECIAL SALE THIS WEEK

OF CHAMBER SUITS.

A marvellous assortment of Chamber Suits, elegantly finished in Oak, Cherry, Maple and other fine woods, and which we offer for this week only at 25 per cent. lower than market price.

The court chamber was thronged with women and children, complainants and their witnesses, for most of the complainants were those of injured wives. All but one of these cases were of the variety that used to be settled before referees, and the papers carefully guarded by the County Clerk. That is to say, cases in which there is no opposition to the divorce.

But since the World exposed the Black-bogus divorce and showed how such secret trials opened the way to abuse and fraud, all such cases have been tried in open court.

The first case to-day was that of Mary L. Davies, who asked for a divorce from Owen Davies, with whom she had not lived for many years. They were married Sept. 19, 1877, and Owen went away soon after. He was a policeman in Jersey City at one time, and lives there now. Mrs. Davies, who is a large woman of middle age, told the court these facts, and Marcelle Davies, her daughter, corroborated her. Other witnesses told how they caught Owen Davies in a Third street house, surrounded by scantily-dressed women, and served the complaint in this action on him there.

These trials are usually very brief. Generally no lawyer appears for the defendant. Nobody said a word in behalf of the Jersey City policeman, and the trial occupied but four minutes. Decision was reserved and the next case was called.

Barbara Kauffman, another heavy woman of middle age, wanted her marriage with Charles Joseph Edward Kauffman annulled on the ground that he had a living wife when he married her to the late J. J. 1888.

Barbara Kauffman appeared for Barbara and was met at the pier by Mrs. McGlody. He was handcuffed to the keeper, the steel bracelet and chain being duly conveyed in the folds of his overcoat. On arriving at the court-room the handcuffs were removed, but he was kept close to the keeper.

Kenney Kennedy says McGlody is a model prisoner and has got to be a skilled drifter, at which work he is employed in the blacksmithing department. He has yet about seven months to serve.

The case was called up before Judge Litch at 11 o'clock this morning and put over until 12 P. M.

McGlody's question in is for $1,000, and was given to secure the notes of the mortgage. When the notes were put up, McGlody refused to satisfy the mortgage. It is claimed, saying that McGlody was in the habit of paying the mortgage to the face of the mortgage.

McGlody refused to talk to any one except his wife, who sat beside him, and her counsel.

McGlody's question in is for $1,000, and was given to secure the notes of the mortgage. When the notes were put up, McGlody refused to satisfy the mortgage. It is claimed, saying that McGlody was in the habit of paying the mortgage to the face of the mortgage.

McGlody refused to talk to any one except his wife, who sat beside him, and her counsel.

McGlody's question in is for $1,000, and was given to secure the notes of the mortgage. When the notes were put up, McGlody refused to satisfy the mortgage. It is claimed, saying that McGlody was in the habit of paying the mortgage to the face of the mortgage.

McGlody refused to talk to any one except his wife, who sat beside him, and her counsel.

McGlody's question in is for $1,000, and was given to secure the notes of the mortgage. When the notes were put up, McGlody refused to satisfy the mortgage. It is claimed, saying that McGlody was in the habit of paying the mortgage to the face of the mortgage.